Your continuous integration and delivery (CI/CD) server can't execute Google Cloud actions in a specific project because of permission issues. You need to validate whether the used service account has the appropriate roles in the specific project.

What should you do?

- A. Open the Google Cloud console, and check the Identity and Access Management (IAM) roles assigned to the service account at the project or inherited from the folder or organization levels.
- B. Open the Google Cloud console, and check the organization policies.
- C. Open the Google Cloud console, and run a query to determine which resources this service account can access.
- D. Open the Google Cloud console, and run a query of the audit logs to find permission denied errors for this service account.
